Volunteer Programs

ROMP Background

ROMP is an international non-profit organization dedicated to delivering functional, high quality prostheses and rehabilitation to underserved people with amputation. We offer support throughout their mobility journey, helping them to reclaim their autonomy and re-immense themselves into society.

ROMP operates permanent clinics in Guatemala and Ecuador. Our volunteer programs play a key role in ROMP's annual impact goals. Volunteers work alongside ROMP staff and local practitioners to provide prosthetic care to our most vulnerable patients, exchanging knowledge and skills.

The Need

According to the World Health organization, 90% of amputees living in the developing world do not have access to a prosthetic limb. In Latin America, amputees face many obstacles to obtaining prosthetic care including a lack of providers, prohibitive costs, cultural and travel barriers, and limited support networks. For many people, the ability to perform physical labor is critical to survival, as a result, the lack of a prosthesis has broad and long-term economic impacts for the individual and the entire community - creating a vicious cycle of poverty and disability. ROMP's goal is to break this cycle.
